This book was written with the purpose in mind to help beginner writers' who have an idea but don't know where to begin to develop it. Over many years of writing I have discovered that most books on creative writing assume the novice writer knows the basics, however, this book is about the basics and how to take an idea and develop it through a series of processes and finish up with a good finished product that can be sent to a Literary Agency or Publisher. Writing is a personal art and a lonely one, if a new writer can understand the basics, then they will progress faster to the more advanced areas of writing. I have been teaching creative writing for many years and still do so, be it one to one or through my local writing courses. I have had writers who have come to me not knowing where to start and have learnt how to start and progress to their writing goal. I have had one of my students who became a best selling author for Waterstones Books and is now working on her second. My ambition in life is to be a better writer and help others on their way. There but for the Grace of God go I.
