Guardian's Patience (Guardians of the Race) (Volume 5) Jacqueline Rhoades

Short and round, she dresses like a gypsy in vibrant and sometimes clashing colors. She's been known to dye her hair to match her mood. She does a Good Deed every day and smiles at everyone she meets. But underneath her happy-go-lucky exterior, Patience Delecourt is lonely and afraid. She's the mouse in a demon's Cat-and-Mouse game that's been going on for years. Her ideal hero would come straight out of the old movies she watches night after night alone in her tiny apartment. Stuffy and socially awkward, Broadbent ad Sebastian, Guardian of the Race, has his vision of the ideal woman, too; tall, elegant, cultured, and well-read. But every time he meets someone who might fill the bill, his advances are met with laughter and derision. As hard as he tries to emulate his fellow Guardians; their prowess with women, their clothes, their interests; he just can't get it right. He doesn't see himself as handsome or a hero. She doesn't see herself as beautiful or brave. Yet what they find together opens new worlds of wonder for them both. It also opens the doors to old enemies and sets off a series of events that threaten the House of Guardians and the people within it. With the credits ready to roll on their mismatched love story, Patience and Broadbent will have to find the bravery and heroism they see in each other, and decide how much they will sacrifice for love.
